SEATTLE MARINERS
IN THE COMMUNITY

MARINERS care
OUR MISSION IS SIMPLE:
To support youth-oriented community service programs and other worthy projects in the Pacific Northwest.
One of the key aspects of the Seattle Mariners’ presence in the Pacific Northwest is the team’s commitment to give back to the community. Major League Baseball provides wonderful opportunities for the Mariners, our fans, our players, our corporate partners, and our staff to make a positive impact on the quality of life in the Northwest, especially for children.

Through Mariners Care, the Mariners’ non-profit foundation, over $1,004,000 was raised for youth programs in 2011. In addition, Mariners Care programs were able to benefit hundreds of charities in our community and thousands of youngsters were able to attend a Major League game. I am particularly proud of our players, coaches, and staff who personally supported these activities with hundreds of volunteer hours.

Mariners Care is committed to making the Pacific Northwest a better place for our children to grow up by impacting youth-oriented community service programs and other worthy projects with the support they desperately need and deserve.

The Mariners wish to thank everyone throughout our community who has been a part of Mariners Care. The story is captured on the following pages and we hope you will join us in our continuing efforts to expand the work of Mariners Care.

Warmest regards,

Howard Lincoln
Chairman and Chief Executive Officer
Seattle Mariners

Aquafina Pitch, Hit & Run

Aquafina Pitch, Hit & Run, Major League Baseball’s official youth skills competition, is a grassroots program for boys and girls, ages 7-14, that recognizes individual excellence in core baseball skills. Winners from each of the four age divisions (7-8, 9-10, 11-12, & 13-14) can advance through four levels of competition, including Local, Sectional, Team Championships, and the National Finals at the MLB All-Star Game. On June 19, the Mariners were pleased to host the 2011 Seattle Mariners Team Championship at Safeco Field for the top Sectional qualifiers from Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana, Alaska, and British Columbia. At the Team Championship, eight-year-old Emeka Egbuka, from DuPont, WA, and fourteen-year-old Bayly Poor, from Union, OR, each posted one of the top three scores in their age division for all of the United States and Canada, earning both a trip to the National Finals at the All-Star Game in Phoenix, AZ. At the All-Star Game, Bayly finished second in the nation and Emeka was crowned the 2011 Aquafina Pitch, Hit, & Run National Champion.
Bayly Poor of Union, OR, is a 2011 Aquafina Major League Baseball Pitch, Hit & Run National Finalist. Bayly shared her Pitch, Hit & Run experiences with MLB.com.

I remember my dad waking me up one morning in May. He was planning on me doing the Pitch Hit & Run Local Competition that day and I was not so sure. I had a little league softball game later that day, but with a little help from my mom, he managed to convince me. Naturally the competition was in Union, my hometown, so plenty of people I knew were there to watch me...I admit, in the beginning, I was a little hesitant to compete, especially when I found out they announced the winners at a school assembly! I was forced to stand in front of the entire student body with a bunch of younger kids. The one upside to that was that my sister, who was also a Pitch, Hit & Run Local winner, was right there with me, sharing the embarrassment of standing in front of my peers. Little did I know that my stage fright was something I needed to overcome, and fast, for the greatest experience of my life was something I would soon share with thousands of people!

I also won at the Sectional Competition and then one day in early June I woke to my Dad talking to my brother in the living room, right outside my bedroom door. My dad was talking especially loud today, which would only mean he was very excited. I had to do some eavesdropping. I didn’t hear much before the conversation ended, but I heard enough to come to the conclusion that I was going to the Seattle Mariners Pitch, Hit & Run Team Championship Competition at Safeco Field. I made it!!! So when my dad heard me moving about in my room, he came in, and his excitement immediately multiplied in me when I realized that this was more than a simple trip to Seattle.

Over 45,000 people went to the Mariners game the day I competed. It didn’t matter whether or not I was competing in front of them, not when I first found out about it. That changed the minute I walked onto Safeco Field, in front of so many people. I realized then that if I was competing in front of all of them, I’d probably forget to breathe, but we were just being announced before the game and then would compete on the field after the game. As scared as I was, I couldn’t help being completely amazed by the number of people, and the total awesomeness of the stadium. I decided something about baseball that day, for it was my first Major League Baseball game. Unlike hockey or football, baseball is a family thing. The atmosphere of a ball game is so much more inviting, fun and clean vs. that of another sport. In the midst of my anxiety, I admired that. And the people helping with Pitch, Hit & Run that day, the volunteers, those were some of the nicest people I’d ever met.

What a great day, after the game we competed and I won 1st place for my age division at Safeco Field on Father’s Day. They gave me a 1st place plaque shaped like home plate. That was amazing to me. I was incredibly honored, and never imagined that I would be in contention for the Pitch, Hit & Run National Finals. I’m still processing that I’m one of the best girls my age in the country. One of the top three in the nation! Can you believe it? It’s early July now and I wonder where the time has gone. I wonder what would have happened if I had refused to enter the competition that morning in May. I wonder where I would be without my Dad.

On the 27th of June, they would announce who advanced to the Pitch, Hit & Run National Finals on MLB Network. I told myself hundreds of times it wouldn’t be me, for I’m the kind of person that would rather doubt myself and receive a great surprise, than overestimate myself and become immensely disappointed. At the same time as the show, I had a volleyball game. I discovered the truth afterwards, when my dad called me. I knew I had advanced to the National Finals in Arizona before I even reached for the phone... for my mom’s smile said it all. Only after my conversation with my Dad though, did I fully understand what an amazing adventure I had yet to embark upon. There comes a time in everyone’s life when they realize that their lives are just beginning. That time for me is now.
